12 REPORT OF PROCEEDINGS had at the hearing in 13 the above-entitled cause before the HONORABLE LARRY G.

15 November, 2009.

16 PRESENT:

17 HON. ANITA M. ALVAREZ,
18 STATE'S ATTORNEY OF COOK COUNTY, by
19 MS. CATHERINE T. CROWLEY,
Assistant State's Attorney,
Appeared on behalf of the Plaintiff;

20 MR. RALPH E. MECZYK,
21 Private Defense Attorney,
22 Appeared on behalf of the defendant.

1 THE COURT: Your client's name is Uppal?

2 MR. MECZYK: It's Uppal, your Honor, U P P A L.

3 May it please the Court, good morning, your Honor. I'm
4 Ralph Meczyk for Julie Uppal. Your Honor, I've spoken
5 to Ms. Uppal about her case. Respectfully, she would
6 ask you participate in a pretrial conference.

7 THE COURT: Young lady, your attorney has asked
8 that I participate in a 402 conference; that's a
9 conference between your attorney, the state's attorney
10 and the Court. I will hear the facts and circumstances
11 surrounding this case; I'd also learn about you,
12 whether or not you have any prior criminal history, if
13 you have problems with drugs or alcohol, your family
14 history, educational background, medical history,
15 anything that your side believes would be relevant for 16 me to consider in determining what an appropriate
17 sentence would be in exchange for a plea of guilty to 18 one or more of these counts. At the conclusion of the 19 conference, I will tell Mr. Meczyk what the appropriate
20 sentence would be. After you've had an opportunity to 21 discuss it with him, you will make a decision: either
22 accept what I recommend, plead guilty and receive that 23 sentence today, or you may reject it and have a trial.
24 But the fact that I participate in the 402 conference

1 would not be grounds to have me removed as the trial
2 judge in your case. Do you understand what a 402
3 conference is?

4 THE DEFENDANT: Yes.

5 THE COURT: Would you like me to participate in 6 one?

7 THE DEFENDANT: Please.

8 THE COURT: Mr. Meczyk, we're going to do that 9 shortly.

10 MR. MECZYK: Thank you very much, your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Recess for conferences.

12 (Whereupon, the above-entitled cause was 13 passed and later recalled.)

14 * * * *

15 THE COURT: Uppal.

16 MR. MECZYK: Ralph Meczyk. She was here this
17 morning, as you well know, your Honor, and I can't 18 locate her anymore.

19 THE COURT: Did you have an opportunity to again
20 discuss the results of the 402 conference?

21 MR. MECZYK: I have not.

22 THE COURT: Bond forfeiture warrant, no bail.

23 Mr. Meczyk, I'm going to give it a date, it has to be
24 more than 30 days for the judgment on it. So, today

1 being the 3rd, we're looking at first week of December.

2 Would the 8th, 9th, or 10th be a good day?

3 MR. MECZYK: Whatever is convenient for the Court.

4 If I find her, I'll surrender her.

5 THE COURT: We'll do it then on the 7th. Is that
6 a good day, Monday the 7th?

7 MR. MECZYK: It is.

8 MS. CROWLEY: If you could just reflect, the state
9 answers ready for trial.

10 MR. MECZYK: Your Honor, thank you and the 11 prosecutor for participating in the conference; I
12 appreciate it. Sorry to waste your time.

13 THE COURT: No, no, not a waste of time.

14 MS. CROWLEY: Just for the record, counsel has 15 tried all phone numbers.

16 MR. MECZYK: Okay.

1 THE COURT: Uppal. Good afternoon.

2 MS. ADAMS: Good afternoon, your Honor. Joshua
3 Adams standing in for Ralph Metzky on behalf of Jodie
4 Uppal who is present and before the Court.

5 THE COURT: This is a case that was set for trial
6 this morning, a conference was had; and Ms. Uppal left.
7 A warrant was issued. You want to be heard as to, I
8 imagine you have a motion to vacate the bond forfeiture
9 and asking to quash and recall the warrant?

10 MS. ADAMS: Yes, your Honor.

11 THE COURT: You may be heard.

12 MS. ADAMS: Our motion, respectfully, of this 13 honorable court is to quash the bond. Ms. Uppal is 14 present and here in court on the day, and we ask that 15 the warrant be quashed and revoked.

16 THE COURT: The situation is as follows, so the 17 record is clear. We were ready for trial today. And 18 this is not the first time that we have been in a
19 posture to proceed to get to resolution on this case.
20 There are two cases: one is an 07 CR 2129 and an 21 09 C 2 20073.

22 The difficulty in this case is that, on a
23 previous occasion when the case was prepared for trial
24 on 07 CR 2129, Ms. Uppal did certain things which

1 caused a second case, the '09 case, to be filed. In
2 that case, as well as the '07, for a trial posture. It
3 is my belief that her actions were dilatory and was an
4 attempt to defeat the Court from being able to go
5 forward to trial today, and that she absented herself
6 so that we would not be able to proceed to trial today,
7 thus inconveniencing the witnesses and disrupting the 8 Court's ability to resolve this case. As such, I
9 believe it is not in the interest of justice to vacate
10 this bond forfeiture, and I will not quash and recall
11 the warrant. In fact, the warrant will be executed and 12 she will be held, no bail. So, the warrant is 13 executed, bond to stand, no bail. What day would you
14 like to have her back?

15 MS. ADAMS: Back for trial or for --

16 THE COURT: If you want an interim -- Would you
17 like an interim status date?

18 MS. ADAMS: Interim status date. Can we have a
19 short interim status date?

20 THE COURT: You can have any date you'd like.
21 I'll strike the judgment date?

22 DEFENSE: Can we get a date a week out, your 23 Honor?

24 THE COURT: Today is the 3rd. Are you asking

1 for --

2 MS. ADAMS: The 10th, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: Let me see if that's a court date. In 4 fact, it is. Okay, motion defendant 11-10 for status.
5 Do you have any other any requests of the Court?

6 MS. ADAMS: A BCX, your Honor.

7 THE DEFENDANT: Your Honor, they told me there was
8 no trial today.

9 THE COURT: Would you like a longer date for the 10 BCX or do you want to order the BCX and have her back
11 on the 10th, knowing there's a chance it won't be done
12 by then?

13 MS. ADAMS: Yes.

14 THE COURT: What we'll do is, we will motion
15 defendant 11-10, and you'll prepare an order, a BCX
16 packet, and I'll sign that order. So 11-10 for BCX.

Is Dr Gall still the chairman? I know that Dr Ramadan left and attached is a list on the RFU clinics website of doctors leaving, basically everyone there I knew and Gall is on the list.

What do I tell the doctors at the interview if they need to talk to Dr Gall or someone at school?

EMERGENCY MOTION TO REVOKE OR IN THE ALTERNATIVE INCREASE BOND

NOW COME the People of the State of Illinois, by and through their Attorney, State's Attorney, ANITA ALVAREZ, through her assistant, Michele Gemske, and move that this Honorable Court revoke the defendant's bond, or in the alternative, increase defendant's bond.

In support thereof, the People state that:

1. Defendant, Prabhjot Uppal, pled guilty to Harassment of a Witness on January 19, 2010, and Judge Larry Axelrood sentenced her to 24 months felony probation with mental health counseling.
2. Defendant is alleged to have violated her probation by committing a new felony offense of Threatening a Public Official et al that is pending before Judge Obbish at 2650 S. California, Room 706. Defendant is alleged to have threatened, amongst others, Rahn Emmanuel, Judge Axelrood, and her attorney Ralph Meczyk. As the new case involved threatening Judge Axelrood defendant's felony probation was transferred to Courtroom 206 before the Honorable Garritt Howard.
3. On January 3, 2011, the Honorable Judge Garritt Howard admonished defendant that as a condition of him releasing defendant on bond she was to have "absolutely no contact with any of the witnesses involved in any of these cases. Any contact whatsoever has to be done through your attorney. You are not allowed to call them, text them, send them e-mail to anyone in this case in any manner, shape, or form. That includes me. That includes the attorneys, and that includes any of the witnesses or alleged victims on these cases. Any contact has to be done through your lawyer." Defendant acknowledged that she understood and agreed to abide by the order. Judge Howard went further and stated "I will make it very simple for you. If you violate that order, you are back in custody. It's as simple as that." See Exhibit A.
4. During the afternoon of Thursday, September 8, 2011, defendant called the office of Ralph Meczyk. An employee, Robert White, answered the phone. Defendant asked for Ralph. and stated that he has records of hers that she wants back. When Mr. White asked who was calling defendant identified herself as Jody Uppal.

5. Judge Howard could not have been more clear that defendant's conduct would not be tolerated. Defendant's bond should be revoked as she ignored the Court's admonishment and violated the order.

WHEREFORE, the People pray that this Honorable Court revoke defendant's bond or, in the alternative, increase defendant's bond.

DePaul University and Rosalind Franklin University of Medicine and Science Establish Alliance to Address Growing Need for Health Care Professionals

DePaul University and Rosalind Franklin University of Medicine and Science are establishing a unique, wide-ranging alliance to help address the expanding need for health care professionals prepared to meet the challenges of an increasingly collaborative and rapidly evolving field.

The Alliance for Health Sciences is designed to:

- establish curricular pathways for DePaul students to graduate professional degree programs at Rosalind Franklin;
- expand and strengthen academic programs at both schools;
- foster collaboration between faculties of the two institutions; and
- create additional research opportunities for students.

According to U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports, the nation is facing an increasing shortage of all types of health care professionals, including physicians, nurses, pharmacists, therapists, nutritionists and podiatric physicians, most of which are expected to have employment growth ranging from 20 to 30 percent over the next decade. Six of the 10 fastest-growing professions are expected to be in the medical field, according to bureau reports.

There also is a need for health care practitioners in different specialties to work with each other on health care teams. According to a landmark 2001 report by the Institute of Medicine, such collaborative care significantly decreases errors and improves patient outcomes. Through the alliance, DePaul will integrate its interdisciplinary liberal studies programs to align and support requirements for Rosalind Franklin's inter-professional education programs, which prepare students for the shared practice model that will be the norm in the future.

"The United States is facing a dramatic need for highly skilled health care professionals to meet the demands created by dramatic demographic shifts in society," said the Rev. Dennis H. Holtschneider, C.M., DePaul's president. "DePaul is excited by the opportunities this Alliance with Rosalind Franklin University will afford our students and the larger DePaul community to expand health education. It also will offer us another avenue to better serve the Chicago community."

Dr. K. Michael Welch, president and CEO of Rosalind Franklin University, added, "As health care delivery changes in the coming years, it is critical that we prepare students today for what we know will be tomorrow's health care needs. Together, DePaul and Rosalind Franklin will offer one of the widest arrays of health science programs among private universities in the Midwest."

For DePaul students, the Alliance will uniquely provide exposure to and advising on Rosalind Franklin's graduate and professional level health programs via curricular pathways, enhanced academic options, faculty collaboration and joint research. It provides hands-on educational experiences from the freshman year through completion of a professional degree.

The universities will collaborate to develop innovative, rigorous curricula that will benefit DePaul undergraduates pursuing health careers by preparing them for highly competitive professional programs and grounding them in the cross-disciplinary knowledge and broader perspectives on health required for success in today's health care environment.

An early admission pathway will streamline qualified students' progress through undergraduate programs at DePaul into the highly competitive master's and doctoral programs at Rosalind Franklin, including: medicine, pharmacy, pathologist's assistant, podiatric medicine, physician assistant and physical therapy. Together, the two schools will seamlessly integrate a strong undergraduate and liberal studies foundation, contemporary professional health education, and state-of-the-art health and medical training facilities. Students enrolled in the jointly developed curricular programs may benefit from reducing, by one year, the overall time required to complete their professional degrees.

As part of the agreement, DePaul hopes to expand its successful master's entry into nursing program at the Rosalind Franklin campus in North Chicago. The program admits those with either science or non-science bachelor's degrees, providing them with an accelerated path to becoming a registered nurse. Rosalind Franklin University will soon break ground on a new 53,000-square-foot education facility to accommodate this program and others with increasing enrollments.

"There's a natural fit between DePaul and Rosalind Franklin," said Dr. Wendy Rheault, vice president of academic affairs at Rosalind Franklin. "Both have growing enrollments, top-notch science and health facilities and well-established commitments to community needs."

In recent years, DePaul also has expanded its education programs in the sciences, establishing the College of Science and Health and building two new state-of-the-art facilities exclusively dedicated to science instruction. It currently has more than 3,200 students enrolled at its College of Science and Health, and its recently established multidisciplinary health sciences degree is the University's fastest-growing undergraduate program with more than 440 students.

"DePaul students will meet regularly with faculty and staff from Rosalind Franklin, a rare benefit for undergraduates in pre-professional programs," said Patricia O'Donoghue, DePaul's interim provost. "They'll get academic and career advice from medical professionals and gain contacts who will give them an advantage as they apply to graduate health programs. They'll be prepared for the intensity of graduate study and gain first-hand experience in Rosalind Franklin's classrooms and laboratories."

The schools also will create a joint competitive research fund that will provide seed money for new areas of exploration. Those projects are expected to help secure external research grants from federal, state and local governments and private foundations.

Mother and daughter prosecute case together

Prosecutors tend to remember the high profile trials that grab headlines.

But for retiring  Cook County Assistant State's Atty. Catherine Crowley, one of her most memorable cases at the Skokie courthouse ended earlier this month with the conviction of a man for retail theft and battery.

It wasn't the defendant or his crime that made the trial so special, the veteran prosecutor said. It was her last jury trial after 28 years on the job — and the first jury trial for her daughter, Christine Hake, as a prosecutor with the Cook County States Attorney's Office.

"She came through," Crowley said of her daughter. "You've got to go for it. I was very confident she could handle it. She did a really good job. I was sure she would."

Hake, 28, has been an assistant state's attorney in Cook County for a little more than a year, and normally handles civil cases as a prosecutor with the Juvenile Protection Division. She said that when the chance to prosecute a case with her mother came up, she jumped at it.

"I'm glad the office gave me that opportunity ,

 Hake said. "Everybody was rooting for us to do a trial together. It finally came to fruition and it was great."

Crowley said she first started thinking about becoming an attorney when she was a young girl and found a box full of newspaper clippings in the attic of her parents' Winnetka home detailing some of the cases her father, Wilbert F. Crowley, had worked on as a Cook County Assistant States Attorney before becoming a judge.

"It was fascinating," she said. "A big influence is that both my father and husband were prosecutors."

Crowley, 58, has prosecuted killers, drug dealers and a slew of other criminals over the years, but she admitted to being a little nervous and excited as she and her daughter prepared to prosecute the shoplifter.

"It was real unusual," Crowley said. "I've prosecuted with young prosecutors before. It was fun for me because I could see how good she was."

Crowley's colleagues said the guidance she gave her daughter prior to the March 6 trial was nothing new for the highly respected criminal law attorney who has always acted as a mentor of sorts to fledgling prosecutors.

"We've been fortunate in Skokie to have her as the most glowing example of what a prosecutor could be," said Robert Heilingoetter, assistant state's attorney supervisor in the second municipal district.

"She's kind of seen it all," he said. "She has a true passion for what it means to be a prosecutor ... which is just a tremendous example for all the other assistants who are here for their first stint. Her willingness to share her experience with younger assistants has always been evident."

"She is only ever about doing the right thing," added Assistant State's Atty. Diane Sheridan. "She has the type of experience that you can only get from being in a courtroom. She is in the courtroom every day and is always looking for ways to improve her craft and to mentor to the younger assistants, because her passion is undying."

Heilingoetter also said he was impressed with the way Hake handled her first ever jury trial.

"She remained very calm and cool in that was her first jury ever," he said. "She really carried herself like someone far beyond her years of experience. It was kind of like a chip off the old block, the two of them working together. You felt like you were seeing a special moment."

Crowley joked that in a sense having her children in court is nothing new.

"When I had a jury deliberating, I'd race home and get them because the babysitter had to leave," she said. "They waited out juries with me. My kids used to play cards with the judge while we were all waiting for a jury to return a verdict."

"My kids have seen me all my life prosecuting," she added. "They think Mum has so much fun, and I do."

Over the years Crowley has prosecuted hundreds of criminal cases out of the north and northwest suburbs. Her greatest job satisfaction has always come from prosecuting adult sex offenders who prey on children.

"With a murder victim, I can't make them better," she said. "A guilty verdict in a child sex case goes so far in helping that child heal."

"The kid thinks, 'People believe me. I helped punish the bad guy,'" she said. "I see it as something really empowering for these kids to testify and to hear that guilty verdict against the guy."

She also offered some sage advice to her daughter, and any prosecutor just starting out in their career.

"Listen," Crowley said. "The most important thing you can do ... is to listen to what that witness is saying and how they're saying it. Sometimes they will say things that will lead you to ask a follow-up question or let you know there's something they're hiding."
